

Fools.

The "Dashaways," of San Francisco, recently applied to Sam. Booth for a contribution to their Sunday evening entertainment. Sam could not well refuse, so he complied by appearing before them and reading the following metrical essay on the fools who get drunk:

Of all the poor fools who inhabit this earth, Fools by misfortune, and fools from their birth; Rich fools and poor fools and great fools and small,
The man who gets drunk is the greatest of all.

The spendthrift who revels in riotous living, In spending, or loosing, or lending, or giving,
Is foolish enough; but he has not yet sunk To the level of him who is constantly drunk.

The miser, eternally starving and slaving, For what he is earning, or stealing, or saving, May be reckoned a fool; but he is not quite So foolish as he who will get on a "tight."

The man who will wager and dicker and lie On the loss of a cent or the east of a die, You would think as foolish as foolish could be,
But the drunkard is even more foolish than he.

Investments in "wildcat" are mostly a curse, But investments in whisky are something still worse, For stocks do not always their favors refuse, But whiskey investments are certain to lose.

And so I'm convinced of the truth of my text, That of all the poor fools for this world and the next,
The rich or the poor, the great or the small,
The man who gets drunk is the greatest of all.

It is significant that "to advance," rhymes with "to realize."

Custom may lead a man into many errors, but it justifies none.

In these times we fight for ideas, and newspapers are our fortresses.

All men would be masters of each other and no man is lord of himself.

Without earnest convictions no great or sound literature is conceivable.

Liberty consists less in giving propensity than in giving judiciously.

Take away ambition and where will be your heroes and patriots?

He who is only in good health, and is willing to work, has nothing to fear in this world.

Bad temper bites at both ends, it makes one's self nearly as miserable as it does other people.

We should accustom the mind to keep the best company, by introducing it only to the best books.

Fuss works hard all day, and don't do any thing, goes to bed tired at night, then gets up next morning, and begins again where she left off.—Billings.

A successful young fellow asked an aged country sexton if the ringing of a bell did not put him in mind of his latter end. "No, sir," replied the grim old grave-digger; "but the rope puts me in mind of yours."

At a juvenile party one little fellow, rejoicing in the splendor of his new clothes, went up to another with the triumphant remark: "You ain't dressed as well as I am." "Well," retorted the other, "I can lick you, anyhow."

Hartz has produced a new trick in New York. He washes his hands in a large basin of water, throws the contents of the vessel over the audience and to the amusement of the spectators they are smothered with flowers, instead of being deluged with water.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA RAILROAD—The News says: "Since the freshest three weeks ago the whole line of this railroad has been carefully examined the breaks have been made good, the possible weak places have been strengthened and nothing has been left undone to keep the road in a thoroughly safe condition. The work on the main line from Charleston to Augusta has been in the skillful charge of Mr. J. H. Back-halter, the supervisor of the division, and a more energetic or more competent man for the position he occupies it would be very hard to find."

The editor of a paper in Baltimore, who stops his poetry as follows:

"We had sweet dreams the other night, When all around was still;
We dreamed we saw a host of folks Pay up their prices still;
We wish the dream would come to pass,
And our empty pockets fill;
To dream a little dream,
To dream a little dream, you know."

Fever and Ague, from which mankind suffer over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a diseased action in the system, induced by the poisonous miasm of vegetable decay. This exhalation is evolved by the action of solar heat on wet soil, and rises with the watery vapor from it. While the sun is below the horizon this vapor lingers near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscera and excreting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete not only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce violent constitutional disorder. The spleen, the kidneys, and the stomach, sympathize with the liver, and become dis-ordered also. Finally, the instinct of our organism, as if in an attempt to expel the noxious infusion, concentrates the whole blood of the body in the internal excretory tubules, and then it is but. The blood leaves the surface, and rushes to the central organs with congested violence. This is the CHILLS. But in this effort it fails. Then the Fever follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the irritating poison through that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. These are the life by proxy of Fever and Ague. Such constitutional disorder will of course undermine the health if it is not removed.

Have I been cured of this disease, an antidote.

Ayer's Ague Cure, which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this distressing disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels it from the system as it is absorbed, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the system in health although exposed to the disease.

Consequently it not only cures, but prevents from the great variety of ailments which are induced by this malarious influence, such as Remittent

Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb, or Masked Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious

Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitations, Painful Affections of the Spleen, Hysterics, Colic, Paralysis, and Painful Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This "Ague Cure" removes the cause of these derangements, and cures the disease.

This it accomplishes by stimulating the excre-tories to expel the virus from the system; and these organs by degrees become habituated to discharge their office of their own accord. Hence arises what we term acclimation. Time may accomplish the same end, and often life is not long enough, or is sacrificed in the attempt, when this "Ague Cure" does it at once, and with safety. We have great reason to believe this is a surer as well as safer remedy for the whole class of diseases which are caused by the malarious infection, than any other which has been discovered; and it has still another important advantage to the public, which is, that it is cheap as well as good.
